San Ramon Valley Genealogical Society

Vol. XXIX No. 7 February - 2014

THIS MONTH – February 18, 2014

“California USGenweb Project “

Presented by: Lewis Ruddick

The USGenWeb Project is a group of volunteers who work together to provide genealogy websites for research across the country, by state and the counties within the states. Lewis Ruddick is the County Coordinator for several counties in California. He began in 1996 with Mendocino County and has since adopted four more counties. His presentation will help you get started using the resources on the California GenWeb Project and the USGenWeb Project. Learn about the information and links on the sites.

Lewis is currently the President of the Stanislaus County Genealogical Society. He has a background in law enforcement, both public and private, has community college and high school teaching credentials and volunteer experience in the Department of Fish and Game, Ducks Unlimited, Inc. in addition to his experience in CAGenWeb and the Genealogical Society of Stanislaus County. He has been doing genealogical research since 1981. That pursuit became a full-time activity when he retired for the second time in 2006. He has researched in the United States, Ireland and Australia. ■

From the January Meeting

“Getting the Scoop on Your Ancestors with Newspapers”

Speaker: Lisa Louise Cooke    Reporter: Russ Erickson

Lisa is an international genealogy speaker, author of Genealogy-Gems.com, a podcast site, and 4 books. She is a past member of SRVGS and has traveled 50,000 miles for genealogy events and talks since we saw her last!

Her book, “How to Find Your Family History in Newspapers” provides a great way to become acquainted with faster means of using newspapers as a genealogy source. Newspaper sites are varied and historic newspapers held in many places; at their source, in archives, and libraries, etc. She discussed: What you can discover in newspapers; Three cool tools online to identify and locate them; Websites with digitized papers, national, regional, and state; finally: “Top tips”.

Newspapers contain obituaries, vital records, substitute data, photos, maiden names, ► insight into communities where ancestors lived, names of relatives and friends, clues for more research, events involving ancestors (which could jog your older relatives' memories), school events, legal notices, classified, and advertising that could include items for ancestors' businesses. Always check the front page of any paper viewed. Items on ancestors' employers can give events affecting their lives. REMEMBER, always write the paper, date, and page number where an item is found.

Which papers existed in the place and time of interest? Check neighboring towns and county-wide papers. When checking foreign language papers, on line translations are available. View the GenealogyGems podcast for more information. Identify papers of interest. Libraries and archives catalogues and other sources are on line. Always start on line, locate the Digitized sources, then find the other sources for newspapers closest to you to save travel time and money.

Tools:

1. Stanford Data Visualization \(SDV\) \(newspaper section\). It has a map and time slider with dots showing where newspapers existed historically. Click on a dot region and a list of newspapers comes up with names and addresses of current available paper sites. The papers digitized are noted, and can be read on line, sections magnified, and downloaded. There is a link for every historic 10 years. The SDV site color codes dots for foreign language newspapers. That indirectly tells you where the involved nationalities lived in each historic period.
2. Newspapermap.com: It has, at the screen top, a HIST button for historical periods. You can go to websites with digitized newspaper copies. It also goes international; clicking "English" and the site will translate the desired articles into English!
3. WorldCat.org: Sign in for a free account, giving you wider access. It catalogues world libraries, providing both enews and places where non-digitized newspapers are held. You can look ► for libraries by zip code. Even corporate libraries are included. The site allows you to create a list of newspapers of interest for your own account. You can obtain a list of people with interests similar to yours. WorldCat has signed to add a list of all Family Search books.

4. Elephind.com: 110 million items from 1985 newspapers (and growing)

In her handout, Lisa includes sites for the United States newspaper program, a Directory of state archives, the US Genweb project, reference librarians at state libraries, and local genealogy and historical societies. Google4Genealogy.com, Google search, when used can be made more specific by enclosing key terms in " ". One can search subscription sites without buying a membership to see what they contain. They are a good source to find what is available. The Google News Archive is no longer adding material, but much is still available there. Remember, only a fraction of what is available in newspapers is on line! On sites, use "contact us" for additional help when desired. Remember, even modern newspapers often contain historical articles, where items from 20-50-to 100 years ago might be repeated.

Newspapers are secondary sources for genealogy. Items found must be verified!

As a last educational item, Lisa suggested <Evernote.com> is a great free website with free software to download if desired. It allows quick and easy note taking when online. A square line can be drawn around a desired item in a newspaper, OCR is used to download that item, and it is searchable by any word in it. ■

President's Message

By Russ Erickson

We can be proud of our San Ramon Valley Genealogical Society, with its educational and social mix of monthly events. For many years, membership has been between 160 and 180. We have 8 members involved on the SRVGS Board, 15 on committees, and 7 heading SIG (Special Interest Groups). That means about 30 members of 165 ► at present are very active and keeping us moving along and interesting. Think about that! In most aspects of USA life, 10 percent of people make up the driving force in politics, finance, and all other aspects of society. WE have nearly 20 percent personally involved. In addition, a good third or more of members are attending every monthly general meeting. Our speakers have been impressed at the turnout for our educational and social get-togethers.

Our members, with their interest in genealogy and history, are also a most pleasant group of people with many geographical and educational backgrounds. Being with them is a social highlight of both Patty's and my month. Thank you all! Now is that time of year when members (and I want especially to encourage you who are younger) need to consider staying or becoming more active. The time when a Nominating Committee is formed and people sought who would like to run for the Board or who are willing to serve on a committee or join a SIG group. Our Board members serve for 1 or 2 years, to keep ideas fresh and allow interested people to also enjoy the added stimulating social time at a monthly Board meeting. Turnover has kept SRVGS vital for 29 years! Volunteers and the beneficence of our LDS meeting place has kept dues low so more are able to take advantage of all we offer. Please consider being a Nominating Committee member. We will need new Board members; a Treasurer, a Membership Chair, Two Program committee members, and a First Vice-President who is willing to advance to President in 2015. Not a great deal of time is needed, just interest and some "mind time". These are all essential. Past chairs can help get you started, and we have avenues to future programs.

Committee helpers and future Chairs are always appreciated, as are members interested in attending and helping with SIG groups. The current Board members, Committee Chairs, and SIG leaders are listed in your handbooks. Talk to anyone where you might have an interest. Being a part of any group is enjoyable and does not take a great amount of time from our busy lives (even when retired, we do seem to stay busy). Make new friends, be involved, social involvement prolongs and enhances life and keeps our minds young. ■

SPECIAL INTEREST GROUP UPDATE

By: Bill George

Full SIG Schedule in February

It looks like we will have a full slate of Special Interest Group (SIG) meetings in February. Details are on our web site (<http://srvgensoc.org/sig.html>), newsletter and handouts.

I would like to thank all the people who open up their homes for monthly SIG meetings. Patty Erickson holds the Irish SIG (2nd Wed. 10am) every month and is one of the people who helped start our Society. Francie Lloyd's Publishing SIG (3rd Thu. 10am) meets monthly, at her home in Danville. She holds the SIG, even in August and December, when other SIGs take vacations. The German SIG (4th Wed 10am) rotates each month to a different person's home. What ► a great way for people to get acquainted with each other.

Gratitude is also due to the Danville Family History Center. Carol Parmely is the FHC director and is very supportive of our SIGs. She allows us to use their meeting rooms to hold four SIG meetings, Mondays at 1pm. 1st Mon. Family Tree Maker; 2nd Mon. FamilySearch; 3rd Mon, Roots-Magic; 4th Mon. Legacy.

There was one milestone. We managed a record attendance of 22 people at our FamilySearch SIG in January.

Speaking of FamilySearch

FamilySearch keeps coming out with new features and you absolutely can't beat the price, FREE! They have full-featured record searching and, if you have added your family to the FamilySearch Family tree (also FREE), you can apply sources you find to those individuals.

Genealogy Societies

If you really want to "dig in" to this great genealogy hobby, there are many societies in the Bay Area. The best one is our own SRVGS, but if you don't mind driving a couple miles many other groups are close by. LAGS (l-ags.org) in Pleasanton is very good. There are groups in Concord, Oakland (three), San Mateo, Santa Clara (two), Napa, San Rafael and Fairfield. There are also nearby conferences in June (Sacramento) and October (Concord). You may search for details using Google or Bing. ■

The Tri-Valley History Council www.l-ags.org/HistoryCouncil is a consortium of libraries, museums, historical groups and genealogical societies in the Tri-Valley area. The group meets quarterly to share information and coordinate some activities. As the representative of SRVGS, I attended the most recent meeting on January 14th at the Rosie the Riveter WW II Home Front National Historical Park in Richmond. Though Richmond is not in the Tri-Valley, one of council members serves the site. The following is a meeting summary noting some events that will be taking place in our area in the near future.
