San Ramon Valley Genealogical Society

Vol. XXXII No. 2 July - 2016

THIS MONTH – July 19, 2016

A Mini-Seminar Featuring

Gena Philibert-Ortega

Speaking on the Following Topics:

“Her Name was Not Unknown: Finding Female Ancestors”

and

“That’s New to Me: Unfamiliar Websites for Your Genealogy”

“Her Name was Not Unknown: Finding Female Ancestors”

There’s nothing more irritating than hoping for a mother’s name on a death certificate and instead finding the word “unknown.” Learn some sure fire ways to research your female ancestors including methodology and resources. Use Gena’s 5 step process for researching (and finding) female ancestors.

“That’s New to Me: Unfamiliar Websites for Your Genealogy”

It’s hard to keep up with all the different websites that can help you with your family history but there are a few core ones that are crucial to your research. In this presentation we will explore such websites as WorldCat, ArchiveGrid, and the Digital Public Library of America.

Gena Philibert-Ortega has spoken on various subjects throughout the United States and virtually to audiences worldwide. She is the author of hundreds of articles published in genealogy newsletters and magazines: FGS Forum, APG Quarterly, Internet Genealogy, Family Chronicle and Family Tree Magazine. Her writings can also be found on her blogs: Gena’s Genealogy and Food.Family.Ephemera. She is the author of three books and was a researcher for the first season of the PBS show Genealogy Roadshow (2013). She serves as Past-President of the Southern California Chapter of the Association of Professional Genealogists. Her current research interests include women’s social history, and researching women’s lives using material artifacts. ■

From the June Meeting

“Breaking Down Brick Walls in Eastern European Research”

Presented by: Lisa Alzo
Reporter: Russ Erickson

Our first Webinar featured Lisa Alzo, MFA, speaking on Eastern European Brick Wall Research. <lisaalzo.com> is her website.

Common: failure to exhaust resources, not reading directions for best results on internet sites (read what the source contains), and using indexes vs. actual records. Do NOT only use the internet, understand the time period you are researching and the language nuances. Do not only look at the line on a record, but observe that which is around it--neighbors, ship passengers, etc.

Spelling can vary for original names. Learn naming patterns and practices for the country of interest. Consult all helpful resources, and recheck later, as new data keeps coming on the internet. Note Eastern European females might have ‘ova’ attached to the surname. Create a chart of possible spelling variations. Key information is in village names, which might change with time. Many widely used record sources should be reviewed, including funeral homes, land/probate, fraternal, newsletters, and especially church.

Blogging or being on news posts online can lead to unknown relatives or past neighbors who might have information.

Always check the Family search Wiki on the country of origin. It also links findings in Gazetteers, etc. Check the country genealogy research sites, Slovakia Genealogy Research, etc. Use both US Google and the country Google sites. Use Google translations, though they have trouble with local dialects. <stevemorse.org> is a great site with data bases and good advice on how to use his information. In FamilySearch, read how to use the collections.

Every year, review all you have done that year and prior research. Use a research log and always cite your sources! Lisa uses Google drive and looks at FAN clubs--Friends, Associates, ► and Neighbors. Use timelines for your documents (Lisa uses Scapple to help with this).

In Their Words, books by Shea and Hoffman help with many languages. The Steve Morse website also has many items helping with words (especially Russian and Hebrew), with One step web pages .

Subscribe to email websites, Google alerts and social sites. Ask for help when needed; it can pay to employ a professional genealogist when needed. Crowdsourc your problem; there is power in numbers. Legacy has a quick guide on Polish research. Check the Hungary Exchange. Ancestry message boards and forums can be useful. DNA analysis is starting to lead to finding living relatives who might have information.

Finally: Skill, persistence, serendipity equal genealogy. ■

President's Message

By Ted Shapas

Summer's here, and time for vacations, garden harvests, yard parties, and our annual break. It's also wildfire season once again, this year a little earlier than usual. While the winter rains filled some reservoirs and kept spring fires to a minimum, they also fed a lot of grass growth, which has now turned into tinder-dry fuel. What this means for us genealogy types is to make sure we have back-up plans for our digital records, and evacuation plans for the physical ones. Evacuation planning can be as simple as numbering boxes in order of priority - in case you do need to scamper to safety, knowing which boxes go along with you first can save precious time.

I hope you enjoyed the June program, our very first webinar, this one brought to us via a DVD. Feedback is always very helpful, so please let anyone from the Program Committee (Wayne Mortensen, Carol Satterthwaite, or Suzanne Johnston) know what you thought of the presentation.

Our July general meeting will be a special one, with back-to-back, not-to-be-missed presentations by Gina Philibert-Ortega. After that, no SRVGS board or general meetings in August, plus the Alamo Family History Center will be closed in August as well. I wish everyone a great summer, and look forward to hearing about your adventures when we reconvene in September! ■

CALL FOR INDEXERS

If you've ever been able to find a relative's name online, thank an indexer. These selfless people have been working for years, line by line, name by name, to ensure that, if a record exists, you can find it by simply typing a name in the search box. Over a billion records have been done by FamilySearch indexers, and they are offered free to anyone who is interested. Last year alone, almost 54 million records went online – an astounding average of over a million per week!

Yet, there are so, so many more records to be done. Ship manifests, birth, marriage, and death records, state and national census records, old parish baptismal records – these are just a few of the current projects. Your help is desperately needed. What other service opportunity allows you to work at home, at any hour of the day or night, for as long or as little a time as you want. And it's fun and exciting!

Getting started is easy, too. Just go to familysearch.org and click on the indexing tab. Set up a free FamilySearch account in three easy steps, download the indexing software, and you're off! A convenient and definitely recommended tutorial takes about 20 minutes. Then, choose a project you like and you are an indexer!

Indexing is a great hobby anytime, but especially now. A worldwide indexing event is ► upcoming July 15th through July 17th. They're calling for 72,000 indexers to do at least one record during that 72-hour period. Get started now so you'll be ready to participate. For personal help, call Lorna Defiebre at 925-837-1686. ■
