RESEARCHING IN GREAT BRITAIN

Jeremy Frankel, researcher and professional genealogist, shared his experience on how to make the most of a fact finding trip to England. He divided his suggestions into three areas: preparation in the United States, preparation in London, and research in an ancestral town or village.

In discussing preparation in the United States, Frankel stressed the amount of information available in the LDS records and on the Internet, pointing out that one of the best home pages to England (and other parts of the United Kingdom) is <www.genuki.org.uk/big/eng> He advised us to find and obtain relevant records for the district we are interested in and suggested that before leaving for London, we contact the libraries to discover those which would be most helpful to us. He also pointed out the value of storing genealogical information on a laptop computer, which makes data instantly available and which can be used in libraries for recording information. He also recommended that we take photos because "they help bring families together."

After warning that staying in London is expensive, Frankel recommended two web sites -- <www.travelshoppe.com> in and around central London and <www.travelshoppe.com/ukacem.htm> outside of London. He advised against renting a car because the London Underground is extensive and offers

Places of genealogical interest to visit in London include the Bishopgate Library, particularly valuable for those researching the east end; the Telecom Telephone Book Library; the Family Records Centre, a recently opened facility containing all the national census returns with the national indexes to birth, marriage and death records; Guildhall Library, which houses records principally concerning the City of London but also contains out-of-London material; the London Metropolitan Archives, formerly the Greater London Record Office; the House of Lords Record Office, which contains records relating to the interest of the national government; the Public Record Office, which is similar to the National Archives and contains ship passenger lists; and the Royal Geographic Society housing the largest collection of maps in the world.

Another important source of information is the census of England and Wales, begun in 1841. There are local efforts to index the names for the 1851 and 1861 census. The 1991 census was recently completely indexed thanks to the efforts of the LDS Church, the British government and local genealogical societies. Frankel cautioned that having found an entry in the 1881 microfiche, we should check to see if there is a plus sign that indicates additional information is available. Both the Guildhall and Bishopgate Library house city directories.

Church records are also a valuable resource. Some London parishes have registers dating back to 1538. For a comprehensive listing check the GENUKI site (continue on page 127)

PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

Greetings and Happy Year 2000 to you all. Now that the Holidays are behind us, its time to look forward to new challenges. Have you made any New Year's resolutions concerning your genealogy? Now is a good time to plan to set aside some time each week to do research, or to organize your materials and compile what you have found so far.

The SRVGS exists to educate our members and to help us achieve our goals. This month we have an outstanding speaker, Christine Rose, who is nationally known as a genealogist and speaker, and we are very fortunate that she lives in the Bay Area and is willing to come to give a talk to our Society. Her Topic will Be: "Solving the Problem On-Site in 25 Hours or Less".

We will also have an Education class this month. The topic will be "Using The LDS Family History Library Catalog, IGI, and Ancestral File" This class will be given by Pat Isom from the Alamo Family History Center. Check the date and time elsewhere in this newsletter. Regularly scheduled opportunities include our monthly library trips; the tape library, available at meetings and the Alamo Family History Center. The Center is open for the use of our members after the General meeting, and help is available if you are not familiar with the materials there. Plan to join us and make use of the opportunities provided by the Society.

We are losing our Newsletter Editor, Jean Hunt, who is unable to continue after January. We have some members who are willing to help with the newsletter, but we are still looking for a computer literate person who would be able to put the newsletter together.

Please call me if you think you might be interested in working with us on this effort.

Library of Congress-American Memory Project

(From Contra Costa County Genealogical Society Vol. 14 No. 7, July 1999, page 48)

<http://lcweb.loc.gov>

The Library of Congress is the world's largest library, and is among the leaders in digitizing items from their collection for access via the Internet. Many of these electronic items (which include audio files as well as visual ones) are found in the Library of Congress' American Memory Project. Among the newer additions to this project is a set of maps showing railroad lines in American states and territories in the nineteenth century. At this time the railroad maps project covers only about 65% of the states, but it already has enough examples to be helpful to the serious researcher who is attempting to track his or her progenitors' movement along this nation's railways.

The maps themselves are originally presented in "thumbnail" size, but you can quickly bring up a "full-size" scanned image to begin closer viewing. And unlike some more static digital images, these maps can be resized: You can "zoom" in or out to get greater detail or a better overview. This ability to change your perspective is invaluable in locating the towns and other features along the rail lines that can help you plan your research in other resources. Each map comes with full bibliographic references to help you ensure their authenticity, and to properly reference them in your own notes.

When you're done looking at maps, you might want to check out other parts of the American Memory project, such as the sound files from 1930's California or the collection of American Life Histories. They, too, could be helpful to you as you seek to reconstitute your family tree.

at www.genuki.org.uk/big/eng.>.

Indentured immigrant sources are also a valuable resource. The indentured immigrant agreed to work for a set period (usually 4-7 years) to pay off the cost of passage.

Frankel provided a list of recommended books: Ancestral Trails: The Complete Guide to British Genealogy and Family History by Mark D. Herbert; A Genealogist's Bibliography by Cecil R. Humphrey-Smith; The Genealogists's Encyclopedia by Leslie G. Pine; and The Family Tree Detective by Colin D. Rogers. Several of these are available at the LDS Oakland Library. (See the three page handout for complete addresses)

SUTRO

(From The SMCBS Newsletter Nov 1999 Vol. 17-10 pg 180)

At a meeting of the SVPF users group Sutro Librarian Clyde James explained the inner workings of trying to keep the library opened on Sat.'s. The bottom line is the legislature requires all state offices (including the library) to be opened during business hr's, so it is not possible to close on Mon. and be opened on Sat. They also are unwilling to fund more hr's., as they can find no justification for that expenditure - extra hr's. will benefit neither the legislature nor state employees. The current Sat. hr's are possible by staff covering two positions and donations paying for 2 Stdnt. Aides. There was enough money in donations to be opened for a year. If you find the Sat. hours useful, please make contributions to the State Libry. Foundation to fund another year. Sutro brochures and donation info are available at SMCBS Library, or use the donation box at the entry. Your donations are tax deductible.**

Be Very Careful Typing e-mail Addresses!

(Robyn Lang, member of the Hayward Area Gen. Society submitted this cautionary tale to the H.A.G.S Informer: (April 1999)

Seems there was this Illinois man who left the snows of Chicago for a vacation in Florida. His wife was on a business trip and planned to meet him there the next day. When he reached his hotel, he decided to send his wife a quick e-mail. Unfortunately he missed one letter and his note was directed to an elderly preacher's wife who had just buried her husband the day before.

When the grieving widow checked her e-mail, she screamed and then fell to the floor in a dead faint. Her family rushed into the room and saw this note on the screen:

Dearest Wife, Just got checked in. Everything prepared for your arrival tomorrow.

Your Loving Husband, P.S. Sure is hot down here.

1890 Census Substitutes - Available in the SF Bay Area

This was sent to us by Millie Freitas. She says this information is available at the LDS History Center in San Bruno.

Virtually all of the 1890 Federal Census population schedules were lost in a fire in 1921. The few remnants are available at the National Archives. Also, schedules for one PA county were extracted for a book.

However, for the rest of the country this leaves a 20 year gap in US census records. To fill this gap for some states there are a number of similar records available on microfilm from the Genealogical Society of Utah (LDS Church). A few of these, for which Federal funding was provided, are also available on National Archives and jRecords Service films. Not all counties are represented for every state shown.
